

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

United States of America

v.

Criminal No. 12-cr-015-02-SM

Felix Rodriguez

O R D E R

On June 4, 2012, the defendant appeared for a bail revocation hearing pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3148. Defendant contested bail revocation under § 3148(b). United States Probation Officer Eric Gray, defendant's supervising officer, testified at the hearing. Following the hearing, the court issued its ruling orally from the bench and explained in detail the basis for the court's decision to revoke defendant's bail. The court's oral ruling is incorporated herein by reference.

A request to revoke bail is governed by 18 U.S.C. § 3148(b), which provides in part:

The judicial officer shall enter an order of revocation and detention if, after a hearing, the judicial officer--

(1) finds that there is-

(A) probable cause to believe that the person has committed a Federal, State, or local crime while on release; or

(B) clear and convincing evidence that the person has violated any other condition of release; and

(2) finds that--

(A) based on the factors set forth in section 3142(g) of this title, there is no condition or combination of conditions of release that will assure that the person will not flee or pose a danger to the safety of any other person or the community; or

(B) the person is unlikely to abide by any condition or combination of conditions of release.

18 U.S.C. § 3148 (b) (1)-(2). The government has the initial burden to establish the violation under 18 U.S.C. § 3148 (b) (1). If the government establishes probable cause to believe the defendant committed a new "felony" offense on release, a rebuttable presumption arises that no condition or combination of conditions will assure that the person will not pose a danger to the safety of any other person or the community. 18 U.S.C. § 3148(b) (2). Otherwise, the government typically has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the requirements of section 3148 (b) (2) (A) or (B). Aron, 904 F.2d at 224; United States v. Poinsett, 953 F. Supp. 37, 38 (N.D.N.Y. 1997).

For all of the reasons stated on the record, the court finds that the government met its burden under 18 U.S.C. § 3148(b) (1) (B), of proving by clear and convincing evidence that defendant violated a condition of his release. The court further found that defendant is unlikely to abide by any condition or combination of conditions of release, see 18 U.S.C. § 3148(b)(2)(B), and that revocation of bail is warranted. The conditions of release are therefore revoked.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the defendant be detained. The defendant is committed to the custody of the Attorney General or her designated representative for confinement in a corrections facility separate, to the extent practicable, from persons awaiting or serving sentences or being held in custody pending appeal. The defendant shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity for private consultation with defense counsel. On order of a court of the United States or on request of an attorney for the government, the person in charge of the corrections facility shall deliver the defendant to the United States Marshal for the purpose of an appearance in connection with a court proceeding.

To the extent consistent with the jail's regulations, and presuming that defendant qualifies for admission, the court makes a recommendation that defendant be allowed entrance into the Therapeutic Community Program, or the "T.C. Program," at the Strafford County House of Corrections.

SO ORDERED.
